03:44:16 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: Welcome back everyone!

03:47:06 Daniel Barber: Hi, Daniel from Cadiz in Spain

03:47:30 Chris Barcelona: Hi from Barcelona

03:47:44 Fabricio Cruz: Hey! Fabricio from Brazil here! Nice seeing you, Richard!

03:47:52 María Adam: Hi again from Mexico!

03:47:56 mary spratt: Hi, Mary from Spain

03:48:03 MARIA ROSA PELIZZONI: Hi, Danny and Richard! I am here again from Cremona

03:48:41 Nilton Hitotuzi: Hi from northern Brazil.

03:48:43 RODOULA RAIKOU: Hello, both from Greece

03:48:55 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: Danny and Richard's new book: <https://pavpub.com/pavilion-elt/teaching-english/working-with-emergent-language>

03:54:52 Nilton Hitotuzi: "Emergent language" can EMERGE during a TBL activity, I believe.

03:55:51 Nilton Hitotuzi: More often than not, I'd say.

03:59:10 Klrsten Holt, Head of Pavilion ELT: ETP: English Teaching professional magazine... now merged with Modern English Teacher. If you subscribe to MET you can access Danny's articles and much more... both in the latest issues and in the online resources.

03:59:32 Chris Barcelona: Hearing it is one thing, but noting it down is not so easy

04:01:00 Klrsten Holt, Head of Pavilion ELT: for sure @Chris but I gather it gets easier with practice!

04:06:07 Masha Gavrilova: I could hear it well

04:06:12 Klrsten Holt, Head of Pavilion ELT: You don't need to listen to the whole recording...just the first minute or two.

04:06:41 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: The recording: https://drive.google.com/file/d/1KgRFe4PlxtuzlQQoQorzyKVzqFjmMO8p/view?usp=share_link

04:11:43 Daniel Barber: Age is a factor, so a punishment that helps him learn ('social ____'); whether this form of treatment exists in their countries; how adult jail ('prison') is not suitable, but under 18s may go to a juvenile prison ('borstal' archaic??? - 'reformer' = 'reform institution' / 'detention centre?'); difficulty in Brazil with these institutions because there is something wrong with them; in Thailand how the focus is on the responsibility of the family in raising children.

04:11:51 Mary Martala: jail is not useful at this age; put students somewhere to learn more; engage in social activities; they are still young - they can learn; young people's "prison" where they can reform them. Parents responsible for their children.

04:11:52 Daniel Barber: Hi

04:11:56 Chris Barcelona: I would have fed the needed word to the student on the spot rather than waiting for him to finish. But I'm not sure that I know the term he hasn't got in English. Is it reform school?

04:12:02 Patricia Barzotti: reform school vs prison - cultural differences dealing with Young offenders

04:12:08 Daphne Klimmek: Comparison with home country

04:12:22 Tamara Ilia: jail is not useful for this age, a place to reform that kind of people

04:14:58 Chris Barcelona: Noting who talked about what and then at the feedback stage asking them to say what they said again.

04:22:52 Daphne Klimmek: Do you also ask them to work together again, maybe in pairs and to work through the list themselves?

04:24:23 Daphne Klimmek: Could you also ask the students to prioritise?

04:26:20 Daphne Klimmek: If I am not mistaken working with L1 influence is back in fashion.

04:27:13 María Adam: Bilingualism is not rejected, if it helps get L2

04:30:04 Chris Barcelona: As a teacher, record yourself giving feedback in part to share with students (on WhatsApp) but also to be able to analyse what you did and how.

04:31:12 Chris Barcelona: Always photograph your board work to share with class, too

04:31:42 Klrsten Holt, Head of Pavilion ELT: Good idea Chris. If you're teaching online, even easier if you record the session and get AI to transcribe it. :-)

04:33:44 Klrsten Holt, Head of Pavilion ELT: Q&A session coming up soon - do put questions here or in the Q&A box. :-)

04:34:29 Daphne Klimmek: Thanks for the reminder for reflective practice.

04:35:00 Tamara Ilia: Is it possible to get a preview of the book?

04:35:03 Chris Roland: Great session!

04:35:11 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: Working with Emergent Language: <https://pavpub.com/pavilion-elt/teaching-english/working-with-emergent-language>

04:35:20 Jill Cunningham: Thanks for this, both. Lots of food for thought.

04:35:22 Fabricio Cruz: This's been so helpful! I've struggled when working with emergent language, and here I could see some very helpful ideas! Thank you so much for answering!

04:35:27 Tamara Ilia: Yes but there's no preview :)

04:35:39 Fabricio Cruz: *Sharing

04:35:47 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: As it is a very recent title, we don't yet have a sample available unfortunately.

04:35:51 Patricia Barzotti: really important to make the most of the emergent language and exploit it, we sometimes don't always think about it

04:36:43 Tamara Ilia: It would be nice to at least see the contents page. That goes to other Pavilion titles as well

04:37:21 Daniel Barber: Thank you, gentlemen - a really interesting and practical talk - enjoyed a lot :) Bye!

04:37:28 Daphne Klimmek: Yes! Learner autonomy.

04:37:32 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: You can always see the list of contents in the 'Details' tab on the webpage ☺

04:39:44 RODOULA RAIKOU: L1 use facilitates learning L2 at some points isn't it?

04:40:52 Tamara Ilia: Oh really? I seem to have looked there but I'll doublecheck. Thank you

04:41:16 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: Working with Emergent Language will be available on Kindle very soon, and a preview will then be available there ☺ it takes a little while for Kindle books to go live, but hopefully it should in the next couple of weeks at the most

04:42:22 Tamara Ilia: Sounds great

04:43:16 Chris Barcelona: The messy bits of the lesson may be the best place to pick up on emergent language. So make sure there are messy parts

04:43:17 Mary Martala: Perfect! Thank you

04:44:53 Daphne Klimmek: Thank you gentlemen. Very interesting talk.

04:45:10 Vincent Wongaiham-Petersen: Would the book be available as an ebook?

04:45:37 Ellie - Pavilion ELT: Yes Vincent, the book will be available as a Kindle ebook very soon on Amazon!

04:45:51 Vincent Wongaiham-Petersen: Great!
